As a student, you will find many opportunities in the Department of Computer Science to fulfill your potential and learn through both in-class and out-of-classroom activities, resulting in a lifelong career in Computer Science.

There are many ways you can create an inspiring adventure in our ABET accredited Computer Science program at Iowa State – find the courage to take risks knowing you'll be supported along the way.

In this presentation you will learn ways to:

- Explore undergraduate research
- Start your own business
- Land a dream internship
- Study abroad
- Help solve real world problems

Your adventure is in your hands!

There are many opportunities for Economics students to engage in research, extracurriculars, and more at Iowa State. In the classroom, you will be learning from world renowned faculty first in foundational economics courses and later in field-based economics courses focused on:

- Labor
- Finance
- Global economy
- Markets
- Development
- Agriculture
- Sports

Step beyond the classroom! Explore opportunities like undergraduate research, Econ Club, and more. In this presentation, hear from program advisers who help students find their adventure, while also meeting current students who engage in all our programs have to offer.

Presenting:
Dr. Ebby Luvaga, Teaching Professor and Coordinator of Undergraduate Advising
Lydia Richards, Student Services Specialist
